1 BACKGROUND

1.1 POLICY

1.1.1 National Framework

Women have an important role in Cambodian society and are the backbone of the national economy and social development. To prevent and respond violence against women (VAW), the Royal Government of Cambodia has issued policies, laws and regulations including

The Constitution of Cambodia, adopted in 1993, explicitly prohibits discrimination against women in its Article 45 which states “All forms of discrimination against women shall be prohibited. The exploitation of women in employment shall be prohibited.”; Article 38 which guarantees “there shall be no physical abuse of any kind”; and Article 46 which states “Human trafficking, exploitation of prostitution and obscenities which affect the dignity of women shall be prohibited...”

The Cambodian Criminal Code 2009 and Criminal Procedure Code 2007 are used to punish all forms of violence against women and girls.

The Cambodian Civil Code 2007 and Civil Procedure Code 2006 state that every family members shall respect each other right, freedom and prevent domestic violence.

Law of Prevention of Domestic Violence and the Protection of Victims 2005, to prevent domestic violence, to strengthen non-violence culture and family harmony in society.

Law on Suppression of Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation 2008, all forms of human trafficking and sexual exploitation shall be prohibited in any picture.

The Cambodian Labor Law and Other Relevant Laws and the Criminal Code both prohibits sexual harassment and indecent behavior in the workplace.

Rectangular Strategy of Royal Government of Cambodia (RGC), Phase IV Side 4 Improving Gender Equity and Social Protection states that the RGC’s “strategic goal is to strengthen gender quality and social protection to enhance the socio-economic situation and strengthen women’s role in the society who are the backbone of the economy and society”.

The Political Platform of the Sixth Legislature of the National Assembly noted the importance of “investing in gender equity along with strengthened partnership between stakeholders to prevent trafficking of and violence against women and children”.

Enforcing the Law on Prevention of Domestic Violence and Protection of Victims (DV LAW) (2005) and The Law on Suppression of Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation (2008)

The Cambodian Labor Law and Other Relevant Laws

The Safe Village Sangkat Policy

The National Strategic Development Plan (NSDP) 2019-2023 was approved.

1.1.2 International Framework

In addition to the national legal framework, to protect the women’s rights the Kingdom of Cambodia has ratified a Number of conventions. As a member state of the United Nations (UN), Cambodia is bound by all decisions of the Security Council of the UN, especially decisions relating to women, peace and security. The key conventions ratified by Cambodia in addition to its current legal framework are:

- Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women 1999 and its' Optional Protocol 2010 (CEDAW)
- UN Convention on the Rights of the Child 1992 (CRC)
- UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD)
- UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous People (UNDRIP)
- Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, especially Women and Children
- UN Security Council Resolutions (SRC) 1325, 1920, 1888 related to women, peace and security

Sustainable Development Goals 5 “Achieve gender equality and empower all women and girls” includes a target to eliminate all forms of violence against women and girls in the public and private spheres, including trafficking and sexual and other types of exploitation.

The Kingdom of Cambodia has also joined regional commitments through the Association of Southeast Asia Nations (ASEAN) to protect the rights of women. The key commitments through the ASEAN Committee are:

- Declaration on the Elimination of Violence against Women in ASEAN 2004
- ASEAN Declaration against Trafficking in Persons particularly Women and Children which was adopted in 2004
- Declaration on the Elimination of Violence Against Women and the Elimination of Violence Against Children 2013
- ASEAN Regional Plan of Action on the Elimination of Violence against Women
- ASEAN Consensus on the Promotion and Protection of the Rights of Migrant Workers
- ASEAN Convention Against Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, Nov 2015

1.2 SITUATION

Violence against women (VAW) is any act of gender-based violence that results in, or is likely to result in, physical, sexual or psychological harm or suffering to women, including threats of such acts, coercion or arbitrary deprivation of liberty, whether occurring in public or in private life. Globally it is recognized that gender inequality is the underlying cause of violence against women¹.

In Cambodia, women and girls continue to be subjected to physical, sexual, emotional and economic violence, cutting across all divisions of income, culture, and class. Women experience violence in the home, in the workplace and in the community. The most common types of violence against females in Cambodia have been identified as domestic violence (intimate partner)² and sexual violence.

There is increasing awareness that diverse groups of women suffer from multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination and inequalities making them vulnerable to violence. Social norms, stigma and discrimination can increase their risk of violence or challenges in accessing protections and services.

¹ UN Women (2018) Ending Violence Against Women Website accessed on 5 December 2018. <http://www.unwomen.org/en/what-we-do/ending-violence-against-women>.

² Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) refers to any behavior within an intimate relationship that causes physical, psychological or sexual harm to those in the relationship. This includes physical violence, sexual violence, emotional violence including controlling behaviors, and economic violence². Domestic violence is similar to the term intimate partner violence as it refers to violence within an intimate relationship. In Cambodia, in the Law on Prevention of Domestic Violence and Protection of Victims (2005), domestic violence as defined as between husband or wife; on dependent children or persons living in the same house and who are dependents of the households. This narrower definition results in some limitations or differences in data that will be identified when relevant.

The Royal Government of Cambodia has made significant progress in its efforts to prevent and respond to violence against women, but challenges still remain to be addressed. Key successes identified in the Mid-Term Review of National Action Plan for Prevention Violence Against Women (NAPVAW) 2014-2018 further assessment in preparation for NAPVAW 2019-2023.

- A Media Code of Conduct for Reporting on Violence Against Women was approved;
- The Commune Alcohol Notification System was piloted targeting alcohol abuse and violence against women;
- The “Positive Parenting” Strategy was developed to target prevention of violence to parents.
- Referral Guidelines for Women and Girl Survivors of Gender Based Violence completed;
- Minimum Standards of Basic Counseling for Women and Girl Survivors of Gender Based Violence completed;
- A Sexual Harassment Workplace Policy and Prevention Package was developed and implemented in garment factories;
- National Guidelines for Managing Violence Against Women and Children in the Health System and a Clinical Handbook for Responding to Intimate Partner and Sexual Violence were developed;
- By the end of 2018, 101 public health facilities received training on health sector response to VAW in line with the National Guidelines and providing services to victims of violence³
- Discussions leading to a planned review of the Domestic Violence Law were initiated;
- The Technical Working Group on Gender -Gender Based Violence (TWGG-GBV) re-organized its structure, held regular coordinating meetings and developed and initiated a joint Annual Operational Plan between five key ministries;
- Sub-Working Groups on Gender Based Violence were initiated in at least eight provinces to improve coordination between key service providers;
- One-Stop Services Center (OSSC) is being piloted at two provincial hospitals, Kampong Cham and Stung Treng province.
- The “Healthy and Happy Relationships” prevention project targeting young people was piloted;
- Social norm change has been included on training for minimum service standards for state and non-state service providers;
- The “Why Stop” Campaign targeting sexual harassment was implemented;
- Significant awareness raising continues especially around the 16 Day Campaign to End Violence Against Women;
- Judicial police agents were trained in all provinces using the Legal Protection Guidelines;
- A Data Collection for Services Provided and Referred was piloted;
- Increased budget for legal aid services through Cambodia National Council for Women to support attorneys Bar Association;
- Increased budget to meet the urgent needs of victims/survivors of violence against women.
- Secondary analysis of data sets existing data sets was conducted identifying key areas for intervention: Media, Alcohol Abuse, Child Abuse, and Education.

While these efforts are significant, gaps remain. Prevention efforts remain underfunded and not coordinated. Prevention efforts are still project based and limited in scope. Minimum service standards have been approved or are in progress for essential services, health, mediation, referral, media, and others. These are significant steps toward improving the quality of services, however, training to build capacity for their implementation is limited to a few pilot provinces, so prevention and response services are still limited in scope and quality. Also, often times services are located very far from the victim/survivor resulting in lack of access to services or high costs for transportation. Few women are able to access the formal justice system, and mediation continues to be conducted that is not survivor centered.

Significant research has been collected on violence against women in Cambodia in the last five years. Two recent studies have provided national level data to better understand the prevalence of intimate partner violence and sexual violence in Cambodia. The Cambodia Demographic and Health Survey (CDHS) conducted in 2014 and the National Study on Women's Health and Life Experiences conducted in 2015. A secondary analysis was conducted that explored the findings of both these studies. This data along with other studies provides a better understanding of the current situation of violence against women in Cambodia.

1.2.1 Domestic Violence / Intimate Partner Violence

Domestic violence / intimate partner violence is the most common type of violence against women in Cambodian society.

- One in five women age 15-49 reported they had experienced physical violence at least once since age 15, and 9 percent experience physical violence within the 12 months prior to the survey. Overall, 18 percent of ever married women age 15-49 report having experienced physical or sexual violence from a spouse⁴.
- About two in five women have sought assistance to stop the violence they have experienced violence and only 24 percent reported seeking help from a formal service⁵.

1.2.2 Rape and Sexual Violence

Data on Rape and sexual violence in Cambodia.

- Six percent of women age 15-49 report having experienced sexual violence at least once in their lifetime⁶.
- Five percent of women reported having experienced at least one form of sexual harassment in their lifetime⁷.
- Four percent of girls reported at least one incident of sexual abuse before 18⁸.
- Sexual abuse by more than one perpetrator is not uncommon. Among 18 to 24-year old's, more than one in 10 females and more than one-quarter of males aged 18-24 reported that the first incident of child sexual abuse was perpetrated by more than one person. Among 13 to 17-year old, one in eight females and one in six males reported multiple perpetrators as the first incident of sexual abuse⁹.

1.2.3 Trafficking in Persons

Trafficking in persons is a serious problem affecting women's and girls' lives in Cambodia. This issue has not been included in National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women 2019-2023.

strategies as the RGC has a separate National Plan of Action of the National Committee for Counter Trafficking 2014-2018 that is currently being updated. The priority areas in this National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women 2014-2018 are complimentary to this National Plan of Action.

1.2.4 Violence against Women with Increased Risk

Women who are stigmatized and are neglected or ignored in their communities or in society occupy a very vulnerable position, which increases their risk of human rights abuses, including violence. Women are often less likely to be protected from violence as a result of their work, community infrastructure, interventions, addiction, health, economic status, gender identify, sexual orientation, race, religion, ethnicity, and incarceration. In Cambodia this includes (but not limited to) women with disabilities, women living with HIV, Lesbian, Bisexual, Transgender (LBT) women, women migrant workers, entertainment workers, sex workers, garment factory workers and other female workers, women who use drugs or their partners use drugs, women in prisons, indigenous women and women from religious or ethnic minorities. Global national disaster reports commonly agree that when disaster occurs women and girls are at increased risk of sexual violence, exploitation, abuse, trafficking and domestic violence. Women experiencing violence before the disaster are more likely to experience more intensive violence after the disaster as they are separated from their support and protection systems. Women with increased risk are more likely to face violence and less likely to have access to justice. Some women also have specific needs that require different response strategies and special targeting in prevention and response efforts.

- Women in rural areas experience physical violence at higher rates than urban women¹⁰.
- Women with disabilities in Cambodia experience similar rates of intimate partner violence, but higher rates of controlling behavior from partners; and significantly higher levels of all forms of violence (emotional, physical and sexual) from family members compared to other women. Barriers to disclosure and access to services are worsened by the fact that many women with disabilities have less financial autonomy and less power in their lives than other women¹¹.
- A qualitative study of women in indigenous communities identified that indigenous women also report experiencing all types of violence and report challenges in accessing justice, safe shelter, counseling services, legal supports and other services¹².
- A study of women that survived the Khmer Rouge regime identified that many experienced gender-based violence including forced marriage with far reaching impacts on the survivors identify, self-worth, social status and financial stability. The trauma is internalized and extends to the next generation and has long term impacts with limited support for the trauma they have experienced^{13 14}.

1.3 PRIORITY ISSUES

Studies on the situation of violence against women in Cambodia have shown that women and girls continue to be the subject of violence. Some forms of violence against women have long existed in Cambodian society including physical violence, emotional violence, sexual and economic violence. However new and emerging issues of violence against women have been recognized such as the vulnerability of marginalized groups to violence against women.

In the situation of each type of violence key areas have been identified as the highest priorities for prevention in the National Action Plan to Prevention of Violence against women 2019-2023 based on the current regulations.

The three priorities include:

1. Domestic violence/intimate partner violence
2. Rape and sexual Violence
3. Violence against women in or vulnerable groups

2 STRATEGIES

The overall strategic priority of the National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women 2019-2023 is to reduce violence against women and girls including those at increased risk through increased prevention interventions, improved response, increased access to quality services, and multi-sectoral coordination and cooperation. Four key areas have been identified as primary areas of focus:

- 1) Prevention
- 2) Legal Protection and Multi-Sectoral Services
- 3) Formulation and Implementation of Laws and Policies
- 4) Review, Monitoring and Evaluation

Based on these, the RGC has introduced the following key strategies and actions

Strategic Area 1: Prevention

- Improve coordination and cooperation at all levels, including between government ministries, institutions, development partners, service providers, civil society and the private sector in primary prevention interventions
- Enhance knowledge and skills of youth and adolescents to promote and build gender equitable, non-violent relationships and to improve their attitudes, behaviors and practices on human right
- Increase positive parenting knowledge, understanding and skills among parents to build safe, gender-equitable, non-violent families, and environment
- Promote safe and harassment free environment in the workplaces and community
- Promote gender-equitable, non-violent social norms, images, and messages and capacity of media including social media to sensitively to prevent violence against women is increased

Strategic Area 2: Legal Protection and Multi-Sectoral Services

- Increase coordination and linkages between government institutions, service providers and civil society at the national and subnational levels
- Strengthen systematic response to violence against women in the health system
- Improve access to justice for all women subject to gender-based violence
- Improve access to quality coordinated social services for women subject to VAW

Strategic Area 3: Laws and Policies

- Cambodia's legal framework on violence against women is strengthened
- Improved and well-coordinated sector policy framework to effectively respond to violence against women is in place

Strategic Area 4: Monitoring and Evaluation

- Establishment of monitoring and evaluation framework and a comprehensive system for data collection that integrates prevalence studies on violence against women and other relevant research

3 ACTION PLAN

National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women 2019-2023 is based on the vision of Neary Rattanak “Cambodian citizens, both men and women, have equal rights under the law and women and girls should have personal safety so they can participate fully in social activities and public decisions on an equal basis with men and boys and have economic empowerment to ensure autonomy and the well-being of the family and community”.

3.1 BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE PLAN

The National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women 2019-2023 covers

- All relevant ministries and institutions
- National and subnational administration
- Development partners
- Civil Society
- Faith Based Organizations
- Survivors
- Vulnerable or marginalized groups
- General public

3.2 IMPLEMENTATION MATRIX

The approach to the National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women is to provide evidence-based interventions through coordination and cooperation to increase the capacity and expand efforts to reduce and respond to violence against women and to support survivors and their children in the timely manner.

Multi-sectoral coordination of key actors who come into contact with issues relating to violence against women and girls and can significantly increase survivor protection and perpetrator accountability and improve effectiveness of prevention efforts. This process of coordination and cooperation at the national level is led by the TWGG-GBV and at the subnational level by GBV Working Groups initiated under the NAPVAW II.

While acknowledging the need for clear lines of responsibility and accountability, the effectiveness of many responses depends on the cooperation and coordination with others. Cooperation and coordination must occur at all levels: from national to subnational, and between different institutions (religious, economic, medical, justice, social services, media and education) private sector and individuals (survivors, activists, and local leaders) under a coordinated response will have a more powerful impact on creating equitable gender and other changes required to reduce violence against women.

Overall Objective: Violence against all women and girls is reduced through increased prevention interventions, improved response, increased access to quality essential services and multi-sectoral cooperation and coordination

Overall Objective Indicator 1: The prevalence of intimate partner violence (domestic violence) is reduced (source CDHS).

Overall Indicator 2: The Cambodian population increasingly disapproves of violence against women (source CDHS)

3.2.1. Strategic Area 1: Prevention

Objective: To reduce violence against women through a multi-sectoral coordinated primary prevention strategy with ministries and institutions targeting key actors and settings for positive change.

3.2.1.1. Coordination and Cooperation

Outcome 1: Improved coordination and cooperation at all levels, including between government ministries, institutions, development partners, service providers, civil society and the private sector in primary prevention interventions

Outcome Indicator:

1a. A comprehensive multi-sectoral primary prevention strategy with consistent messages is developed and implemented.

4 LAW AND REGULATION DRAFTING SCHEDULE

To respond to gender inequality, the Royal Government of Cambodia has recognized the importance of prevention of violence against women in Cambodian society and has developed the Law on the Prevention of Domestic Violence and Protection of Victims, and other relevant laws offering ways for victims to request protection effectively from authorities.

For enforcement of protections to be effective it is necessary to increase understanding of: the Law on the Prevention of Domestic Violence and Protection of Victims and other relevant laws; and the legal protection challenges that survivors face on a daily basis, in order to provide appropriate and timely response to survivors. Some challenges still faced by survivors of violence against women are due to the following reasons:

- Understanding of authorities and people is still limited by as awareness-raising on laws and policies have not reached all people especially those in rural and remote areas.
- Prevention and interventions to survivors of violence against women by law enforcement and other stakeholders is slow due to challenges they face from inadequate resources or skills
- Action to respond can take a significant time in some cases.
- Legal representation is constrained for poor victims because of limited number of lawyers, particularly at remoted areas and lengthy procedures for support that result in the inability to respond in a timely way to the needs of victims
- Some articles in the law do not adequately respond to the current situation.

The Royal Government of Cambodia has had significant progress in legal and judicial reforms and continues with strategic direction to strengthen institutions and the protection of people particularly women and children at the community level.

Cambodia has passed laws such as the Penal Code, The Criminal Procedure Code, The Civil Code and the Civil Procedure Code and other laws that guarantee equal rights between women and men in line with international standards and consistent with the laws of other countries in ASEAN and the world. In the implementation of the Law on the Protection of Domestic Violence and Protection of Victims and legal regulations the success is a result of:

- Collaboration with the support and encouragement between ministries, institutions, civil society, and victims who provided timely and rapid information and interventions;
- Law enforcement officials and the authorities' willingness to help victims voluntarily and ensure victims fair and timely access to legal, social, health and education services;
- People have attended public forums in their schools and communities with questions and answer sessions so issues can be addressed based on the real situation; and
- Specific messages are published in the media targeted to youth and provide opportunities to share experiences and learn new ideas that violence against women is not acceptable.

To actively participate further in reducing violence against women and further strengthen non-violent cultural harmony in the family, community and social needs is recommended:

- Review contents of some articles of the Law on Prevention of Domestic Violence and Protection of Victims and the legal regulations to update to respond to the gaps based on the actual situation.

- Provide capacity people development to key actors in the justice chain (local authorities, police, judges and prosecutors) to ensure adequate knowledge and practices to apply available remedies in a gender sensitive and timely way protecting the rights of victims and holding perpetrators accountable.
- Speed up procedures for poor survivors of violence against women to access legal representation when required in cooperation with the Bar Association of Cambodia.

The National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women 2019-2023 is a short-term implementation plan, which requires all partners to contribute to its implementation for overall success. Therefore, the proposed amendments to necessary legal articles, development of new regulations and improvements in inter-ministerial proclamations must be initiated with full awareness these are actions that will be continued in the long-term.

5 EXPENDITURES

The National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women 2019-2023 will be supported by the RGC national budget that require relevant line ministries and generous support of development partners, the private sector, civil society and other donors.

6 REVIEW, MONITORING AND EVALUATION

To ensure successful implementation of National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women 2019-2023 review, monitoring, evaluation and reporting is required. This should include the following mechanisms:

- TWGG-GBV Secretariat as the main body for monitoring for the National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women 2019-2023.
- A system for data collection to monitor implementation in cooperation with line ministries and NGOS to serve as the tool for monitoring, evaluation and reporting. This system will provide government ministries with resources for policy development and analysis, and for improving performance in service delivery. It will also identify the most efficient use of resources as well as implementation challenges, thus enhancing transparency and accountability.

Additionally, other data including prevalence data through the CDHS will measure progress of the National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women 2019-2023.

The review, monitoring and evaluation of the National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women will include an annual activity report, a mid-term review and a final evaluation.

7 CONCLUSIONS

The National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women 2019-2023 was developed in response to the existing success and challenges in implementation of NAPVAW II. In its primary prevention efforts this Plan aims to promote a coordinated and comprehensive approach targeting positive change in key settings. In legal protection and multi-sectoral services, this Plan aims to build on the successes in development of standards and improved coordination, building capacity of key actors in collaborating to provide better survivor centered approaches and inclusive interventions. The focus will be on strengthening understanding, implementation and enforcement of laws and policies at the subnational level. Laws and policies will be reviewed to close gaps based on the real practice of their implementation in line with international standards. And a comprehensive data collection system will be developed and implemented to monitor and evaluate the National Action Plan to Prevent Violence Against Women 2019-2023.

8 DEFINITIONS

Gender-based violence	is “violence that is directed at a woman because she is a woman or that affects women disproportionately. It includes acts that inflict physical, mental or sexual harm, suffering, threats of such acts, coercion and other deprivations of liberty” violence against women	means any act of gender-based violence that results in, or is likely to result in physical, sexual or psychological harm or suffering to women, including threats of such acts, coercion or arbitrary deprivation of liberty, whether occurring in public or private life. Accordingly, violence against women encompasses but is not limited to the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> A) Physical, sexual, psychological violence occurring in the family, including battering, sexual abuse of female children in the household, dowry-related violence, marital rape, female genital mutilation and other traditional practices harmful to women, non-spousal violence and violence related to exploitation; B) Physical, sexual and psychological violence occurring within the general community including rape, sexual abuse, sexual harassment and intimidation at work, in educational institutions and elsewhere, trafficking of women and forced prostitution; C) Physical, sexual and psychological violence perpetrated or condoned by the State, wherever it occurs.
Prevention	refers to the prevention of violence against women, which has two levels such as primary and secondary prevention. Primary prevention of violence against women includes all efforts to end violence by addressing the root causes of violence that may occur in the future. It requires the identification of specific groups at high risk and experience violence in the future with strategies to promote positive changes in attitudes, beliefs, practices and social norms. Secondary prevention requires further development of service and response to minimize risk and effect of violence to women and girls include perpetrators conviction.
Intervention	refers to the action/program which is established to prevent and minimize risk of violence.
Response	is to enhance the quality of responsive action of violence against women in terms of health, police, justice and social service.
Positive Parenting	is focused on developing a strong, deeply committed relationship between parent and child based on communication and mutual respect without any form of violence.

Gender equality	is the equal rights, responsibilities and opportunities between men and women where the interests, needs and priorities of both women and men should be taken into consideration. It does not necessary mean that women and men will be treated the same, but that their rights, responsibilities and opportunities should not be dependent on if they were born female or male. Gender equality is seen as a human rights issue and a precondition for sustainable people-centered development.
Gender equity	means fair treatment of women and men. To ensure fairness, measures must often be available to compensate for historical and social disadvantages that prevent women and men from otherwise sharing a level playing field. Equity leads to equality. Measures that address specific disparities that prevent women from having the same status as men will allow both women and men to share equally in the results and benefits of development. One example of such a measure of equity is the prevision of leadership training for women, which addresses the problem of gender inequality in structures of governance. Equity is the means and equality is the result.
Intimate partner violence	refers to any behavior within an intimate relationship that causes physical, psychological or sexual harm to those in the relationship. IPV is one of the most common forms of violence against women and includes: acts of physical violence, such as slapping, hitting, kicking and beating; sexual violence, such as forced sexual intercourse and other forms of sexual coercion; emotional (psychological) abuse, such as insults, belittling, constant humiliation, intimidation, threats of harm, or threats to take away children; and controlling behaviors, such as isolating someone from their family and friends, monitoring their behavior, or restricting their access to financial resources, employment, education or medical care.
Domestic violence	refers to the violence that happens and could happen towards husband or wife, dependent children, persons living under the roof of the house and who are dependent of the households.
Sexual harassment	is an act that a person abuses the power which was vested to him/her in his/her functions in order to put pressure again and again on other persons in exchange for sexual favor.
Indecent assault	Touching, fondling or caressing the sexual organs or other part of a person without that person's consent or coercing another person to perform such acts on the perpetrator himself or herself or a third person for the purpose of arousing the perpetrator or providing sexual pleasure to the perpetrator constitutes indecent assault.
Social norm	Standards or models of behavior practiced by societies and rooted in their cultural, ethnic and historical backgrounds. Often social norms limit the participation of women in mainstream development, due to the fact that their main tasks are seen as looking after children and doing household chores (requiring limited formal education), that their opinions are considered less relevant than those of men, and that the limited access to resources, services and participation in decision-making process of women are seen as normal.
